

Interior Design & Finishing Management Platform

Product Demo — from first BOQ line to a client-approved change order

Scenario: Nile & Co. Interiors, a Cairo-based design studio, running the Zamalek Penthouse Renovation for client Laila Farouk — from a priced bill of quantities through a sent proposal, client approval, signed contract, recorded payment, and an approved mid-project change order.

A companion screen-recording (walkthrough.mp4) captures this same flow as video.

STEP 01

Sign in

This is the Interior Design & Finishing Management Platform — a multi-tenant system for design studios to run a project from first quote through to final handover, priced in EGP, with Arabic and English support throughout.

The image shows a sign-in form centered on a light gray background. The form is titled "Sign in" and "Interior Design & Finishing Management Platform". It contains two input fields: "Email" with the value "sara@nileandco.example" and "Password" with masked characters "". Below the fields is a black "Sign in" button. At the bottom of the form, there is a link: "Have an invitation link instead? Use the link your admin sent you." In the bottom left corner of the page, there is a small circular logo with the letter "N".

STEP 02

Dashboard

The dashboard gives an owner a one-screen view of active projects, pending proposals, and receivables — the daily operating picture for the studio.

Pricing Panel

Markup and fee rules stack on top of the BOQ automatically — here, a 12% contractor markup on direct cost and a 10% design & supervision fee on the client subtotal. Internally, every layer of the math is visible; toggling to the client preview shows that a client only ever sees the bottom line, never the cost breakdown or margin.

Sending a proposal snapshots the BOQ and pricing into an immutable version, and generates a secure link with a one-time verification code — the two things staff copy and share with the client manually, since this MVP has no built-in messaging integration.

Change Order — Request, Approve, Apply

Scope changes after the contract is signed go through a controlled, auditable change order: drafted internally, sent to the client with its own secure link and code, approved the same way as the original proposal, and finally applied — the only path by which a signed contract's value is ever allowed to move.

Applying the change order updates both the BOQ (a new line item appears) and the contract value in one transaction — the increase matches the change order's price impact exactly.

STEP 12

Reports

Reports roll every project up into one organization-wide view — revenue collected, what's still outstanding, and estimated margin, clearly labeled as an estimate since it is derived from BOQ pricing rather than real expense tracking. Note that the Change Order Value and Budget Variance columns match exactly — the only way a contract's value moves after signing is through an applied, audited change order.

Summary

That is the full lifecycle demonstrated end-to-end: lead to priced BOQ, BOQ to a sent and client-approved proposal, proposal to a signed contract, contract to tracked payments, and a controlled, client-approved change order along the way — all while role-based permissions keep internal costs and margins invisible to anyone who should not see them.
